

EXTENSIVE RAID
BY AUTHORITIESArrests Made in 22 States for Misuse of Mails by Government Officials

Washington Nov. 20.—A nation wide raid, involving the arrest almost simultaneously of 173 persons in the principal cities of the country, was made today by postoffice inspectors and United States marshals upon doctors and drug concerns charged with misuse of the mails to solicit criminal medical practice or to dispose of medicines and instruments connected with such practice.

The raid was under the personal direction of Postmaster General Hitchcock and Chief Inspector Robert S. Sharp of the postoffice department. Working with clock like precision the inspection force spread over 22 states carried out the prearranged plans, and at an early hour tonight the postoffice department had received word that practically all of the designated persons had been arrested.

Chief Inspector Sharp and a large part of his force of 390 inspectors had been engaged for several months under the orders of the postmaster general in working up the scores of individual cases, in which arrests were made today. Many of those taken into custody were members of prominent wholesale and retail drug concerns, or physicians well known in their own communities.

The government will prosecute the cases vigorously, according to a statement by Postmaster General Hitchcock tonight.

"The work of the postoffice inspectors today is the culmination of the crusade instituted more than two years ago against the fraudulent and unlawful use of the mails," said Mr. Hitchcock. "In that comparatively brief time we have wiped out of existence concerns that have mutilated the people of this country out of more than $100,000,000 by frauds perpetrated through the use of the mails and the courts have sent many of the promoters of the fraudulent schemes to the penitentiary, where they now are serving time. The wide publicity given to the arrests made today will do more to put an end to this particular sort of criminality than any number of practically unknown prosecutions of widely separated cases."

CHARGED WITH INFANTICIDE

RAILROAD NOTES

The local bridge builders of the B & M railroad will begin the building of the new bridge at Nobles Island as soon as the War Department will give the railroad permission to temporarily close the draw.

A sixty foot bridge over Oak street at Amesbury, will be put in place tomorrow by foreman Wherrin, and bridge crew from this city.

The bridge department of the B & M is strengthening bridges between Portsmouth and Manchester in order to use heavy motive power on coal service.

Foreman Smart and section crew of the Portsmouth Electric railway began the work of raising the block paving on Congress street today.

The work of reinforcing the piers of the Dover Point bridge is nearly completed and work in this line will be suspended until next year as the ice during the winter would make it impossible to proceed further with the concreting.

MAY GO TO BIDDEFORD

It is likely that some of the members of the local fire department will accept the invitation to attend the concert and ball to be given by the Biddeford Firemen's Relief Association in that city on Thanksgiving eve.

Nude Body of Child Found by Officers Where It Was Thrown by MotherMedical Referee Will Hold Autopsy to Determine Whether Child
Was Still Born or Not

Ella Berry, aged 21, colored, is at the Portsmouth hospital in a precarious condition, and is charged with infanticide by the county officials.

The Berry girl has been employed for some time past as a domestic in various families in this city. Her last employment up to Saturday last was with Mrs. A. L. Miller, of Islington street.

On Saturday she went to work at North Hampton in the family of Clifford S. Drake. On Tuesday she complained of being ill and did not leave her room. Dr. White of North Hampton was called and he accepted her statement that she was suffering from the ill so common to women. He gave her some pills to ease her sufferings and took his departure. On Wednesday her condition became worse and the physician was communicated with by telephone. He was about to leave on another case and he directed that the woman be removed to the hospital in this city where she could have proper treatment.

She was brought here in the ambulance and Dr. E. B. Eastman called. On examination he found the woman was suffering from the after effects of child birth and after considerable questioning she admitted that she had given birth to a child where she was employed and as it was still born had thrown it down a well on the premises.

On learning these facts Dr. Eastman at once notified County Solicitor Cupitt and Sheriff Spinnery and the two proceeded to the hospital where the young woman was further questioned.

She changed her story as to the disposal of the child and said that she had thrown it down the toilet in the laundry of the house where she was employed.

The officers visited the Drake place at North Hampton this morning and had no trouble in finding the body of a fully developed infant, weighing ten pounds.

The woman in her story said she wrapped the child in her night dress, and the body was nude when found.

It was turned over to Undertaker

Ham and Medical Referee Wallis D. Walker will perform an autopsy this afternoon.

The young woman maintained that the child was still-born, but it is the opinion of the officials that it was alive in a healthy condition when disposed of by the mother.

At the hospital this noon it was stated that the young woman was in a serious condition, and it was doubtful if she lived.

The young woman is a native of Columbia, S. C., but has made her home in this city for several years. She alleges that the trouble was caused by a sailor who is at present aboard one of the government ships now in Cuban waters.

PROTEST AGAINST
R. R. AGREEMENTThis State Voices Remonstrance to the Department of Justice--Asks Government to Interfere

Washington, Nov. 20.—New Hampshire's state officials today joined with Massachusetts and Rhode Island in protesting to the department of justice against the alleged traffic agreement between the Grand Trunk railway of Canada and the New York, New Haven and Hartford, petitioning the federal government to interpose under the Sherman anti-trust law with the purpose of preserving railway competition in New England.

John E. Benton and Edward C. Niles of the New Hampshire public service commission held a long conference with Jesse C. Atkins, assistant attorney general, who has direct charge of the investigation. F. J. McLeod and George W. Bishop of the Massachusetts railroad commission participated in the discussion, supplementing the information they gave the department yesterday.

It was announced tonight that the department of justice had postponed the proposed grand jury investigation in New York of the alleged unlawful traffic agreement between the Grand Trunk railway of Canada and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, pending a further inquiry by the department itself. Assistant Attorney General Jesse C. Atkins said tonight that the presidents of both of the railroads had offered to give full access to the records of their companies, and that Attorney General Wickersham decided that a full and careful examination of facts offered by the railroads as well as by the protesting Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Hampshire officials should be made before putting the case into the hands of a grand jury.

NEW HAMPSHIRE PROTESTS.

Concord, Nov. 20.—The action of Public Service Commissioners John E. Benton and Edward C. Niles in protesting the abandonment of the Grand Trunk project in New England constitutes in effect a formal utterance by the board. Mr. Niles, the chairman, and Mr. Benton, the clerk, constitute a majority and their action is entirely valid. The only course left to the third commissioner, Thomas W. D. Worthen, did he desire to take a different course than that chosen by his colleagues, would be to express a dissenting opinion and give publicity to the same.

Messrs. Niles and Benton are present at Washington attending a national convention of public service commissioners and railroad commissioners. Although the conference, which will be in session all of this week, is more especially for railroad control boards, delegates are also present from the various public service commissions of the country, where such commissions take the place of railroad commissions.

Messrs. Niles and Benton went to the national capital Monday afternoon, and while Mr. Worthen had also planned to be present, a number of matters were in hand which necessitated the attention

NRS. RAYMOND MADE THREATS

Witness at Trial Says She Threatened Mattie Hackett's Life.

Augusta, Me., Nov. 20.—"If Mattie Hackett ever crosses my path, I will kill her."

Mrs. Sarah J. Swan, a hotel cook, testified today at the Hackett murder trial that this threat was made by Mrs. Elsie Hobbs Raymond, the respondent, in a hotel at Readfield a year or two before the crime and before she was married to Bert Raymond. It was made, she testified, at times when Raymond while transporting passengers from the trains would be very late and she would be kneeling at a window watching for him. She appeared very angry at such times.

Another witness who attracted much attention was Evelyn Hackett, eldest sister of the murdered girl. She testified that Raymond tried to embrace her while driving home with her, and just at that moment Mrs. Raymond surprised them by jumping from beside the road. Nearly a dozen witnesses for the state were examined before the noon recess was taken.

Mrs. Sarah J. Swan, a cook employed at the hotel at the time Raymond and the respondent were "keeping company," had heard Raymond and Miss Hobbs, now Mrs. Raymond, discuss the Hackett girl. She said:

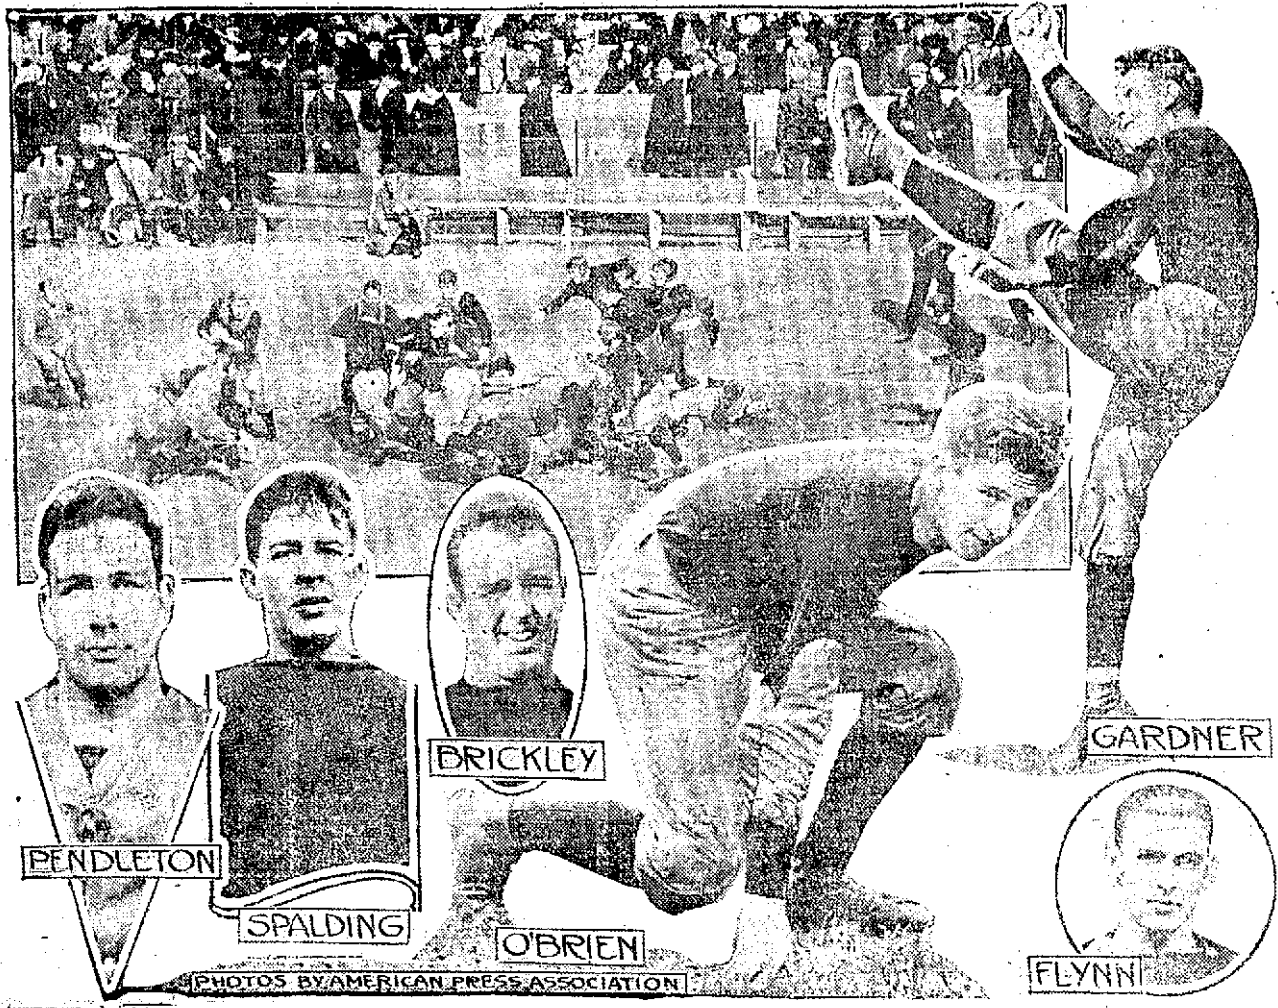

"Mr. Raymond carried passengers in the hotel team. Sometimes he would be gone very late and Miss Hobbs would be very much offended. Sometimes she would kneel by the window and I would ask, 'Why, what is the matter?' She would say 'If Mattie Hackett ever crosses my path, I will kill her.' She seemed very, very angry."

On cross-examination Mrs. Swan admitted she had not told of this circumstance until last spring, when she related it to her lawyer, except that she had talked it over with her people. Asked how she happened to tell it so many years after the conversation, she explained that she underwent a serious operation and was very close to death and thought she ought to do so.

Evelyn Hackett, eldest sister of the dead girl, testified that during the previous June, when Mattie was sick, she had taken her place at the hotel. She testified that Raymond tried to embrace her and Mrs. Raymond suddenly jumped out from beside the road. Mrs. Raymond climbed into the team without help and on the way back the witness did not exchange half a dozen words with her. She was unable to say whether Mrs. Raymond distinguished between the witness and her sister, Mattie.

Mrs. Rose Milliken, wife of Doctor Milliken, who lived in the same house with the Raymonds, told the court that soon after the doctor had been summoned subsequent to the murder, Raymond appeared and began searching for his wife. About 11 o'clock, two or three hours later, Bert Raymond, his

Stars of Yale and Harvard Elevens Ready to Clash in Biggest Football Game of the Year

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 21.—The eyes of the football world are now centered on the Yale-Harvard game to be played here Nov. 23. The winner of the battle will be hailed as the champion team of the 1912 season. Both elevens are in grand shape. Harvard came through the game with Dartmouth without injury, and Yale came out of the battle with Princeton without a puncture of any of the men. For the past few days the coaches here have been smoothing out the wrinkles in the Blue team and now figure Yale is strong enough to take Harvard into camp. Many experts are of the opinion that on the showing of Princeton against Harvard and Yale the Cambridge eleven should be the favorite in the coming battle. Others figure Princeton's playing last Saturday was better than against Harvard. In a kicking way Yale hasn't any punter who can combine height with distance as expertly as Pelton or is as gifted an artist in making goals from the field as Brickley, but nevertheless Flynn kicked admirably against the Tigers, incidentally giving an exhibition of kicking against the wind as one could wish to see. He also proved that there was something of a place kicker. Then, again, though the Elis haven't a Brickley, they have in Pumpelly one who is no slouch as a drop kicker. This will be the thirty-second time Harvard and Yale have met on the gridiron. Of the past games Yale has won twenty-three, Harvard five, and four were fought to a tie. Owing to an impressive antiseptic which grew out of the game played in Springfield in 1894 the teams did not meet in 1895 and 1896. The breach was soon healed, however, and play was resumed in 1897. Since that time Yale has triumphed in eight games and Harvard in three. Four games resulted in ties. It is worthy of note that since 1897 the beaten team has not scored and that since 1908 neither has made a touchdown. The brother, Nathan, and Mrs. Raymond entered the house, the respondent being between the brothers, who had hold of her arm. She noticed Mrs. Raymond was crying, also that she wore dark clothes, including a dark coat.

Mrs. Milliken was told she had been sitting in the orchard but had not been there all the evening, sitting on the steps a short time.

Mrs. Milliken testified that before the murder Mrs. Raymond wore tan shoes and after it had been committed she wore black shoes.

That he saw Raymond and Mattie Hackett riding together two days before the latter's death and that he met Mrs. Raymond following them, was the testimony of George N. Lane, a Readfield farmer. He described the footprints of a woman's No. 8 shoe, which he had found and measured, the next morning in the Nickerson cornfield.

The tracks, which were fresh, began at the end of the road and followed near the wall, the length of the corn place. They went to a pair of bars and into the latter, thence to a point opposite the Nickerson house and to the west side of the Hackett road. He thought the prints compared with a number six shoe.

George Colby of this place, as was reported.

The tug Mitchell Davis, in charge of Marie Fred Chase, left on Tuesday with a barge for Portland, from whence she towed a barge to Boston.

BID FOR SOUTH POND IMPROVEMENT REJECTED

The bids for excavating the mud from the upper part of the South Pond were opened by Mayor D. W. Hodger and the special committee on Wednesday, and but one was received. This was for $28,005.11 by the Marcelini Construction Company of this city, and it was rejected.

The bid for the improvement of the pond is but $10,000 so that some radical change in the plans will have to be made. Engineers who had looked over the plans had all along claimed that to excavate the mud to a depth of two or more feet would be a costly undertaking, and be far in excess of the estimate made by the committee. This bid of the Marcello Company was simply for excavating, and did not include the wall about the pond.

It is now evident that either more money must be raised by popular subscription or otherwise, or the present plans given up entirely. The committee will not take any action until their next meeting.

POLICE COURT

Judge Simes disposed of the following cases in police court on Wednesday afternoon.

John Lambert, a stranger, was charged with the larceny of a sweater from one of the crew of the ferry

Alice Howard. He was sentenced ninety days in jail.

John Babbitt who was charged with the larceny of an overcoat from the Warwick club, the property of Joseph Berry, was held in $200 bonds for the upper court.

William Falvey, for drunkenness was sentenced to 20 days at the farm.

FINE MATINEE CONCERT

Sousa and his wonderful band was at the Portsmouth Theatre on Wednesday afternoon, for a matinee concert and was greeted by the largest concert audience that has been seen here for a long time. It was a representative audience and they showed their appreciation of the excellent music by frequent applause and Mr. Sousa responded with his usual good grace with several encores.

Sousa's band is greater than ever, in fact the last time it was here, it was considered that his was the last word in band music, but his concert of yesterday afternoon was even finer than any before heard in this city. He has the largest band for many years, fifty five men taking part in the concert. Sousa has just returned from a tour around the world in which he was greeted by wonderful audiences, and lavishly praised by all of the musical critics.

His concert program included several of his own compositions, and he delighted the audience with one of the encores playing "Everybody is Doing It" to a wonderful arrangement. For another he played the ever favorite "The Stars and Stripes Forever," and others of his famous marches.

He was assisted by that wonderful cornetist Herbert L. Clarke, Miss Virginia Root, soprano, and Miss Nicoline Zedeler, violinist, and she is a remarkable fine artist.

Tonight is the big match of the season in the navy league series. Accounting will roll against the General Store at the Arcade Alleys, and the match will start at 7 o'clock sharp. The supporters of both teams have organized and will be at alleys strong this evening. The Accounting rosters have been practicing two new songs which they will sing and which are expected to get the "goats" of the Store bunch. Both of these songs are parodies on well known popular successes and one of them goes like this:

When we get them alone tonight,
When we get them alone tonight,
We will wallop the General Store,
And go through for the four,
Oh Oh, Oh, Oh, won't they be sore!
We will pile up the strikes and spares
Gee Kid, Say, ain't we the bears?
We're the niftiest shiftiest bowlers,
And we'll gut the Store on the rollers
When we get them alone tonight.

Another one goes like this:
Somebody else will be getting it,
Right where we landed it before,
Somebody else will talk about
Our "luck" when we roll the Store;
Somebody else is due to lose,
Even though they're wearing overshoes,
Somebody else will be getting it,
It looks like a hard winter.

The two teams trained to the minute will line up as follows:
Accounting—Hett, Lynes, Marcous, McMullen, Googins.
General Store—Brooks, Chesley, Filbin, Kirvan, Paul.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

Marty O'Toole, the high-priced twirler of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be married to a Massachusetts girl next month.

King Cole, the pitcher traded by the Cubs to the Pirates and recently sold to Columbus, has opened a barber shop in Chicago. Cole says he has recovered his control and will make a record with the razor and shears.

Harry McIntyre, the veteran twirler, who was released by the Cubs last summer, will make an attempt to "come back" next season. Joe Tinker has promised him a trial, if he is appointed manager of the Reds.

Hugh Jennings, the Detroit's manager, says that the Tigers will be greatly strengthened next year. He has many new players to be tried in the spring and also will have the veterans Cobb, Crawford, Bush, Stanage and Davy Jones as a nucleus.

It is reported that the owners of the St. Louis Cardinals have offered Roger Bresnahan $3500 for the cancellation of his four-year contract with the club. Bresnahan refuses to cancel his promise for less than $40,000—quite a difference.

Rube Peters, the Sacramento pitcher, was not able to be in on the finish of the Pacific coast league. He was hit in the head with a pitched ball about a month ago. He was on the field the next day and seemed to suffer no bad results, but complications developed that compelled him to take to his bed and for a few days he was in such serious condition that no one was permitted to see him. Latest reports are that he will recover completely.

President Hedges of the St. Louis Browns says he certainly was in earnest in his offer to make a deal with Roger Bresnahan that would pay Roger as much as his Cardinal contract called for, barring, of course, a percentage of the receipts. President Hedges thinks Bresnahan would not only be a great drawing card, but that he would be just the man to coach the young Brown pitchers from whom Stovall expects so much next year.

Joe McManity is now a full-fledged club owner once more. He returned yesterday to New York from the annual meeting of professional baseball clubs in Milwaukee and brought with him the majority stock of the Tacoma (Wash.) club. McManity is associated with his brother-in-law, Frank Redpath, in the venture. The club is in the Northwestern league. McManity will act as manager and also will take his turn in the box.

The spring training dates of the Cincinnati Reds were announced yesterday. The Reds will leave Cincinnati March 4 for French Lick Springs, remaining there four days, and then going to Mobile, Ala. They will remain in Mobile until March 26, when they will return direct to Cincinnati, March 29, 30 and 31 they will play the New York Americans, and April 4, 5 and 6 the Boston Americans, and April 7, 8 and 9 the Detroit Americans, opening the regular season April 10.

"Baseball in the National league should have a good season in 1913," said President Lynch when he was asked if he expected to see a more prosperous year, than 1912 had been. "As a matter of fact," he added, "this has not been a poor season by any means, when you take the entire circuit into consideration. Every indication points to another red-hot race next year between New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago. These three old rivals will be in the field with practically their old-time strength, and I am looking for a lively tussle throughout 1913. Then there is another team which I believe is destined to surprise the people next spring and that is Cincinnati. This club contains some splendid talent and should be a factor in the approaching championship race."

President Taft and the Civil Service.

President Taft has done much to hasten the progress of civil service reform; as much, probably, as could be done in one administration at the present time, and has urged the need of applying civil service laws to many other offices. The public still regard a government office as a "plum," to be won by political service. The same rule obtains in state and city. Men get and hold their jobs through politics. Marshals, revenue officers and postmasters are appointed by the thousand because of their politics. Why do these men want these offices? Simply because they pay better salaries than they are capable of earning in any other way. There will be no lasting reduction in the amount expended in running the government until the "spoils" idea is permanently eliminated. As long as thousands of purely administrative offices, including many important ones, are "plums" of politics, the government in state and nation will cost hundreds of millions more than it should. Efficiency should be the test applied to applicants for public office as for other occupations, and the salaries paid should be in accordance with the amounts generally paid for similar ability in other occupations. When the village postmaster, who is ambitious to become the city postmaster, can only hope to do so by increasing his efficiency, we shall have economical and efficient service—but not before. The national plum tree must go.—Manchester Mirror.

Over the Presidential Teacups.

If President Taft invites Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. Wilson to come to the White House as guests, as he has intimated that he would like to do before inauguration day, he will be extending a very graceful courtesy to his successor in office. The incident will be proof that the verdict of the American people at the recent election arouses no personal rancor in the breast of the retiring executive. When Mr. Wilson paused during his campaigning in this city to pay his respects to Mr. Taft, who also was here, he paved the way for the invitation, although of course no such future event was in his mind. The relations between a president and a president-elect should be cordial, and the fact that their relations are not purely formal is a pleasant commentary on present-day politics. If Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson have some heart-to-heart talks about different features of the times, and exchange confidences, the next president may be spared some errors of judgment, and if they do nothing more than indulge in social small talk it will show that they are friends and not rivals.—Boston Globe.

Republican Party Abiding Its Time.

As far as the broader issues are concerned, we have just this to say. The republican party is defeated and badly so. But it is not dead. Anybody who thinks so is deceived most completely. The republican party, with its history of more than half a century, its record of accomplishment and prosperity for the whole country and its millions of devoted followers, cannot be thus assassinated and destroyed by the work of a single traitor who has been twice put into the presidency by this same party. It will simply abide its time. Meantime, let's smile, shake hands with those who differ from us, and all go forward to make the next four years years of prosperity and happiness so far as we are able.—Rochester Courier.

The Republicans Will Stand.

Any member of the New Hampshire legislature who allowed his name to be used as a candidate of the republican party on the official ballot ought to be insulted at the suggestion that he is likely to do other than to vote with the republican party on a strict party vote, like the election of governor or the filling of vacancies caused by the failure of candidates to receive a majority of the votes cast in their voting districts. Any man who preferred to be a progressive instead of a republican had a right to do so, but, having elected to stand as a republican and having been successful on that ticket, if he deserts his party at the behest of out-of-the-state bosses he is nothing more or less than a traitor.—Republican Champion.

The Philadelphia Press states that it is frequently hinted that modern life is prosaic, that science has come in and poetry gone out. We imagine romance belongs to the far back ages and that the open daylight of the "times" has spoiled those starry splendors of vision which greeted the gaze of our forefathers. A single item in the day's news might do something to convince us that the stirring events of time present take no second place to the thrilling annals of the Crusader period, or the tumultuous enthusiasms of an earlier age when orient and western thought met and blent confusedly in the schools of Alexandria. If the victorious Bulgarian troops, with their allies, should hold their thanksgiving "De Deum" in the St. Sophia Cathedral, this will signalize the change of the European map, and mark anew the vast and world-wide sociological upheaval taking place even while we are as men that dream.

Turkish Mosque In Kumanova Battered by Hand Grenades During Battle---Bulgarian Aviators.

Photos copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

The fighting during the war in the Balkans has been unusually desperate. This is shown by the photograph of the Turkish mosque in the village of Kumanova in which the sultan's troops had taken refuge. They were dislodged by hand grenades, which battered the old structure as shown in the picture. The lower photograph shows a Bulgarian aviator consulting with a field general after a flight over the enemy's forces.

The Railroad Speed Evil

A fast express train was wrecked on the New York New Haven at Hartford railroad Saturday night at Greens Farm, Conn., causing the injury of thirty five persons. The train it appears was three minutes behind schedule and was travelling at a rate of about sixty five miles an hour, when it struck a crossover and left the track. An examination of the rails afterward by the chief engineer of the state public utilities commission led to the conclusion that a defective bolt, strapping under the high speed, causing the rails to spread. An official statement by the railroad company issued later laid the blame for the wreck upon something giving way under the strain and dropping into the switch. The obvious fact is, however, that the train was going at too high a rate of speed to warrant the use of the crossover, and it is concluded that the accident was attributable solely to this cause, as in the case of the wreck at Westport last summer which caused the death of seventeen persons, and it is also pointed out that the wreck at Bridgewater a year previous, which caused twenty deaths. Public interest in this matter has been aroused to the extent of causing protests to be voiced by organizations of citizens and it is likely that the interstate commerce commission will move in the matter as far as its jurisdiction permits. The three wrecks on this line that have been mentioned have occurred within a stretch of fifteen miles, and it is concluded now that the line is not built strong enough to stand the high speeds that are developed at this point.

Recently the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads, taking a warning from the wrecks evidently caused by high speed, lengthened the running time of their fastest trains between New York and Chicago, and other railroads have cut off some of their most widely advertised trains for the same reason. There has been no public protest against these changes. In fact, the public has heard of them with relief, and it is plain that there is no jurisdiction for the often repeated dogma of the railroad companies that public demand for high speed is accountable for the tremendous paces of the railroad service. The fact is that most of the train speeding is done for purpose of competition and advertising, and the people will ride on these trains if they can afford the price for the sake of the luxury of exclusive travel and to take advantage of the slight economy of time afforded, trusting to the railroads to operate their lines in safety. There is no hardship whatever in the lengthening of the schedule time.—Washington Star.

The New Militia Order

It is rather remarkable that so long a time has elapsed before organizing the militia of the United States in a manner to cooperate effectively in case of an emergency, with the regular forces. Inasmuch as the National Guard is recognized as the first line of defense behind the permanent army constituting the nucleus of the reserve fighting strength of the country, it should long ago have been placed in effective cooperation with the War Department for the quickest possible use. This Civil War found the country wholly unprepared in this respect. Both North and South the militia companies then in existence were of virtually no value whatever for the purposes of field duty, in the matter of organization on a large scale. They were merely small units that were with difficulty fitted into the general scheme of organization. Between the Civil and the Spanish wars considerable advance however, was made toward effectively establishing the militia as a reliable means of army creation in time of need, but the campaign of 1898 clearly showed that much remained to be done. There was a lamentable lack of coordination between the regular and volunteer forces, as to formation, training and equipment. It has only been during the past fourteen years that real progress has been made in this direction, and now a step has been taken which at last brings the National Guard and the regular army into close potential relationship and promises a maximum of efficiency in case of war.

It may to the public at first glance seem a small matter to organize the militia forces into grand divisions sixteen in number, covering the entire country. But in point of military preparedness this is the most important step that has been taken since any work whatever has been undertaken by the national government toward utilizing the National Guard as an effective fighting force. Under this arrangement it will be possible, assuming cooperation on the part of all the states to mobilize the citizen soldiery in short time, in perfect relationship to the regular army. Sixteen headquarters are designated, each the center of a tactical unit, having its own storage depot and business center. Through these headquarters points the War Department will keep in constant close relationship with the guard, will insure the maintenance of a uniform standard of equipment and discipline and in case of need will also be able within a few hours to assemble an army or a series of armies, if need be, capable of taking the field at once and maintaining an active campaign without long and costly delay.

On this basis the militia force becomes a potent agency of protection. It will of course, be necessary continually to drill and train the local units, to keep them mustered to the fullest possible strength, to establish the standard of army discipline and to engage in occasional camps and maneuvers in connection wherever possible with regular forces. But no greater burden will be put upon the members of the National Guard than before. By the new plan they will be given rallying points and assurances of immediate equipment and supply. They will know with what officers they will be called upon to serve. There can be no reason to look for any but the heartiest cooperation between the federal and the state forces under this new arrangement.—Washington Star.

About three years ago I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. They cured me and I have had little trouble since. Sometimes when I overwork or do any heavy lifting, I notice lameness in my back but on such occasions, a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills bring relief. Nature's Sun Dial.

There is no need for clocks on the Aegean sea any day when the sun is shining. There nature does not vary though the centuries pass. This natural time-maker is the largest sun dial in the world. Projecting into the blue waters of the sea is a large promontory which lifts its head 3,000 feet above the waves. As the sun swings round the pointed shadow of the mountain just touches one after the other of a number of small islands, which are at exact distances apart and set as hour marks on the great dial.

To Tax Bill Boards.

The newspapers of Paris the beautiful are loudly demanding that the "gigantesque panneaux rechangeables" bill boards—that disfigure some of the most prominent places in the city be eliminated. They hold that the only means to obviate this barbaric invasion is for the city to tax these boards at such a high figure as to discourage the big advertisers from using them. The French parliament has already passed a law taxing bill boards in the country, where they do not add to the beauty of the landscape.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

Governor Bass has issued the following proclamation setting apart Thursday, November 28, as Thanksgiving day:

The Proclamation

By an old and good custom one day has been set aside, after the harvest each year, to thank God for the many benefits we have received. The nation has in recent years produced enormous wealth. Our state has enjoyed a reasonable measure of prosperity. Great as has been our material well being there are other matters for which we should be thankful. We are today passing through a period of moral and spiritual unrest, and readjustment which will result in upbuilding our standards of civilization and of government. Our business morals are higher than they were. Already there is general recognition of the truth, that the welfare of our fellow men should be placed above the mere accumulation of riches. The responsibilities and duties of citizenship are now more seriously considered than at any time in the present generation. There is a universal demand for the rights of citizenship, and purity of the ballot be guarded more tenaciously than of old. The ideas of the nation are today higher and more inspiring than they have been for half a century.

In order that we may give fitting expression to our appreciation of all the good that has befallen us, I, Robert P. Bass, Governor of New Hampshire, do hereby designate and proclaim Thursday, November 28, 1912, as Thanksgiving day.

It is fitting that on this day we take a broader view of life, that we escape its petty strife and destructions; and gathering in our churches and at home join in spirit of humility, appreciation, and cordial good will toward one another, to thank God for his kindness to us.

The Jonett has arrived at Norfolk and the Whipple, Preble and Stewart at an Pedro.

The Worden has sailed from New York to sea to test gyroscopic compasses, and the Tingey and Craven, went New York for Charleston.

Changing Their Quarters

The recent orders causing a redistribution of living quarters at the yard will necessitate the moving of some of the officers now quartered at the station to this city. The order is effective on December 1.

Purpose of Naval Reserve

The recent plans for a naval reserve under consideration by Capt. C. T. Marsh will be presented to the next congress.

The purposes of the proposed reserve include, in the event of hostilities, the manning of the reserve fleet, the filling of the compliments of the ships of the active fleet to a war basis, and the commissioning of a fleet of auxiliaries. Probably no secondary inducement will be offered to the ex service men for joining the reserve.

Stewards to Fill Vacancies

All those pharmacists in the navy who are eligible by length of service for appointment in the new grade of chief pharmacist have been examined and commissioned. The consequent vacancies in the grade of pharmacist will be filled by appointment of hospital stewards who qualify at an examination to be held in January.

They Want to Get Back

Thomas Williams of the marine guard which recently left this yard for Managua, Nicaragua, writes that all the detachment that left Portsmouth will be glad to get back to this city which may be before the holidays.

We have it pretty hard here since our arrival, trying to get the rebels off the railroad, but so far have had no serious trouble. We have a nice camp here with plenty of good water, and we have plenty to eat, so the majority of the bunch are happy.

They Feel Pretty Good

The Accounting Department which heads the navy yard league in the bowling series believe that their team already has the pennant won. The manager has received several challenges from yard teams and fast bowling squads in this city. The Accounting team does not at present care to accept any of them, but the manager guarantees that when the league series are concluded his team will take care of anything and everything in Portsmouth and the surrounding country.

FIGHTING IN MEXICO.

Lieutenant and Three Rural Guards Are Killed.

Mexico City, Nov. 20.—A fight between rural guards and rebels for the control of a railroad train lost the lives of a lieutenant and three rural guards and of two civilian passengers near Panama in the state of Guanajuato yesterday. The train traveling on the Guadalajara branch of the Mexican Central railroad ran into a bridge from which the rails had been removed. The engine and two cars fell through.

A large force of rebels then ran confidently down the hillside toward the wreck, not knowing of the presence of the twenty four rural guards in one of the cars on the way to the capital.

The guard took up positions and held the rebels off. The fight around the wrecked train lasted about an hour. Then the rebels retreated. Besides the four soldiers and two passengers killed, several others were slightly injured. It is not known how many casualties were sustained by the rebels.

The presence of the guards no doubt prevented the robbery of the train, and possibly the slaughter of the passengers by the rebels.

Eight small encounters in various parts of the republic were reported today and in each case the government troops claimed the victory. The rebels are showing increased activity in northern Durango, while the Zapatista movement in the south continues unchanged.

HAIR STOPS FALLING, DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your Hair! Beautify it! Invigorate your scalp! Danderine Grows Hair and We Can Prove it

Try as you will after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of Dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks use when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy, and wavy and have an appearance of abundance, an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

JAMACIA VISITED BY HURRICANE

Island Is Swept, Two Towns Wrecked and Many People Killed.

Kingston, Jan. 20.—The western end of the island of Jamaica has been devastated by a hurricane lasting for five days. A great tidal wave has swept over both the north and south coasts, practically wiping out the towns of Savanna la Mar and Lucea, both towns of considerable importance.

According to a report brought in by steamer, forty two persons were killed at Montego bay.

All the roads have been wrecked along the southeastern coast and irreparable damage has been done. Communication between Kingston and the center of destruction is not likely to be resumed for a week.

The effects of the hurricane extended along the coast eastward to Black River, about twenty five miles from Savanna la Mar, where the residential quarter was wrecked.

Lucea is a small town of 2000 inhabitants on an inlet on the north-west coast of Jamaica, while Savanna la Mar is a seaport with the same number of inhabitants on the southwest coast almost directly opposite the other side of the island.

Confirmation has now come in from the great destruction caused by the recent hurricane in the western end of the island. Floods which accompanied the storm caused immense damage, a hundred houses being blown down. Telegraph communication is still suspended.

The governor of Jamaica has left on a special train accompanied by a detachment of artillerymen, who have taken with them 399 tents and foodstuffs, as in certain sections the people are homeless and destitute.

The gale began on Nov. 15 and continued in increasing fury for several days. Vessels arriving in port reported that the wind was blowing over a hundred miles an hour.

The observer of the meteorological station in the western part of the island sent the following report today.

"The full force of the hurricane struck here Monday. The observatory was partly wrecked."

Later reports say that the entire wharf frontage at Montego bay has been wrecked.

MELLEN SILENT.

Boston, Nov. 20.—President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad declined to make a detailed statement today regarding the report that he has already signed a traffic agreement with the Grand Trunk railway.

The following official statement was issued late today by the New Haven railroad officers:

"Mr. Mellen has signed what is, in effect, a proposition to Mr. Chamberlain for a 26-year agreement, but it has not been accepted by Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Mellen is without knowledge of what action Mr. Chamberlain will take."

"While the department of justice conducting its investigations I have no statement to make," said Mr. Mellen. "When the department is through I will be very willing to make a statement. I do not care to try the case in the newspapers."

WHEN A LAXATIVE IS NEEDED—"CASCARETS"

Calts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills Act on Bowels as Pepper Acts in Nostrils

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your liver, stomach and bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset bothered with a sick gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver, and carry off the constipated waste matter and poisons from the intestines and bowels.

Remember a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10 cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Votes Canvassed by Governor and Council—Warden Scott Reappointed.

The governor and council met at the state house yesterday morning and took up the votes cast at the recent election.

The first of the series canvassed were the votes cast for senators, and certificates of election were issued to the 20 candidates, 10 Republicans and 10 Democrats—whom came out of the fight with a majority vote to their credit.

Credentials were issued to Congressman-elect Eugene B. Reed, of Manchester and Raymond B. Stevens of Landaff.

The votes cast for the 12 amendments to the constitution were next taken up and after the canvass had been completed Gov. Bass issued an official proclamation, that the amendments 7, 8, 10 and 11 had received the necessary two thirds vote and that the constitution as amended by those articles was in effect.

He also proclaimed that the constitution was unaffected by the other amendments, which had failed to receive the necessary vote.

Henry K. W. Scott was reappointed as warden of the state prison, and Rev. Whitman S. Bassett was named to succeed himself as chaplain of the same institution.

This afternoon the governor and council visited the prison and inspected the new work shop and on Thursday they will reassemble in the council chamber, for the purpose of canvassing the votes cast for Presidential electors.

BE WISE IN TIME

You cannot keep well unless the bowels are regular. Neglect of this rule of health invites half the sickness from which we suffer. Keep the bowels right; otherwise waste matter and poisons which should pass out of the body find their way into the blood and sicken the whole system. Don't wait until the bowels are constipated; take Bloodline Liver Pills.

They are the finest natural laxative in the world, gentle, safe, and prompt and thorough. They strengthen the stomach muscles and will not injure the delicate mucous lining of the bowels. Bloodline Liver Pills have a constitutional action, that the longer you take them the less frequently you need them. They help nature help herself and keep the bowels healthy, bile active and stomach well. They never sicken, weaken or gripe. GUARDING ROYALTY AT NIGHT

Elaborate Precautions That Are Taken to Insure the Safety of European Crowned Heads.

Every night the palace at which King George is sleeping is patrolled by night watchmen, who pass along the corridors, throughout the night, inspecting doors and windows. These watchmen wear carpet slippers to deaden the sounds of their footsteps, and are specially trained to know exactly what to do in case of fire. In addition to the night patrol, there is always a sentry on duty outside the chamber in which the king sleeps.

King Alfonso of Spain is guarded at night by specially selected soldiers, who take charge of the keys of all the doors each night. These men pledge themselves that the doors shall not be unlocked until daylight, and no one is allowed to enter or leave the palace until the night is over. The guards sleep outside the royal bedchamber, so that no one may enter during the night.

King Albert of Belgium is another carefully-guarded monarch whom no one may disturb once night has set in. Soldiers patrol the corridors of the king's palace, and his special valet locks himself in the king's antechamber, which no other person is allowed to enter. The valet is forbidden to open either door until morning under penalty of death.

The czar of Russia, the closest guarded of any monarch, is protected at night by several companies of soldiers, including Englishmen, members of the secret police, and a body of Cossacks. The various companies work independently of one another.

The sultan of Turkey is nightly watched over by a very large number of soldiers and councillors who remain within the neighborhood of his bedroom until morning. The sultan changes his sleeping apartment of ten or more times a week. He has the choice of two-score bedchambers, and he visits many of these in turn throughout the year.

His holiness the pope is guarded by an attendant who is able to watch the welfare of his master through a spy hole in the wall of his bedchamber, so that the pope is always under observation.

He's a Wonder to His Wife.

A Missouri lady is trying an experiment. Her husband is a brilliant man, but loquacious. Realizing his shortcomings, the wife is feeding him on fish. Three or four times a week she prepares fish in some delectable way. He is showing some uneasiness and has a marked predilection for water but being innocent of his wife's motive, continues to eat the dishes set before him.

To her pastor, the wife recently confided: "You see," soberly, "John is a very remarkable man, but he wastes too much time sermonizing when he should be thinking. He talks altogether too much. To counteract this, I am feeding him fish. During the last two months I have served him with seven or eight different varieties of fish cooked in forty-seven different ways."

"Why fish?" asked the pastor, greatly interested.

"Because," replied the wife, "fish is food for thought."

"I see," said the reverend gentleman, "but have you noticed any marked change?"

The wife's face grew sad. "Do you know, Mr. Jones, that has been of mine is such a chatterbox that I do believe he could eat the whole of that swallowed Jonah and never lose a syllable!"—Woman's World.

Electricity Used as Food.

Professor Bergonie of Paris has advanced the theory that electricity can be made to take the place of food in sustaining life. His idea is that the essential purpose of food is to supply the body with internal warmth. He claims to have proved that low tension high frequency currents of electricity can be passed through a man in such a manner as to produce the required energy warmth of maintained life. The great thing to guard against is the production of a temperature high enough to be fatal. According to Professor Bergonie, electric "food" is much superior to vegetables and meat, inasmuch as it imposes no work on the digestive organs, the food being directly absorbed by the nerves. Thus is avoided the savant asserts, the ordinary fatiguing, wearying process of intestinal combustion which is so exhausting to invalids or to patients in a weakened state. "One dose of electric 'food,'" we are told, "will do as much good as three solid meals of ordinary food. More than that, electric food actually increases the patient's weight."

BRAIN REMAINS ACTIVE

EXPLANATION OF THE WORKINGS OF SOMNAMBULISM.

Authenticated Cases of Remarkable Performances Are Many—One Man Made Long Journey in Safety While Asleep.

Various stories are told of acts committed by persons asleep, and, while these bear all the marks of having been done with both body and mind active and awake, the performer, on his awakening, is unconscious of their execution. We herewith give a few of the most interesting and seemingly incredible of these authenticated tales: "A certain member of a foreign university, having devoted himself during his waking hours to the composition of some verses, which, however, he had not been able to complete, seems to have been honored with more success in a visitation from his muse during his nocturnal slumbers; for the following night he arose in his sleep finished his poetic performance, and, exiting in his success, returned again contentedly to his couch, all in a state of unconsciousness."

"A rope-maker in Germany often fell asleep while at work, and either continued his work in the proper way or uselessly remade cordage already finished. Sometimes when walking long distances he would similarly be overtaken with sleep and go on safely avoiding horses and carriages and timber lying in the road. On one occasion he fell asleep just as he got on horse back, yet he went on, rode through a shallow river, allowed his horse to drink, drew up his legs to prevent his feet being wetted, passed through a crowded market place, and arrived safely at the house of an acquaintance. His eyes were closed the whole time and he awoke just after reaching the house."

"In the college where he was educated was a young seminarist who habitually walked in his sleep, and while in a state of somnambulism used to sit down to his desk and compose the most elegant sermons, scrupulously erasing, effacing or interlining whenever an incorrect expression fell from his pen. Though his eyes were apparently fixed upon the paper when he wrote, it was clear that they exercised no optical functions, for he wrote just as well when an opaque substance was interposed between them and the sheet of paper. Sometimes an attempt was made to remove the paper, in the idea that he would write upon the desk beneath. But it was observed that he instantly discerned the change and sought another sheet of paper as nearly as possible resembling the former one."

"At other times a blank sheet of paper was substituted by the bystanders for the one on which he had been writing, in which case, on reading over, as it were, his composition, he was sure to place the correction suggested by the perusal at precisely the same intervals they would have occurred in the original sheet of manuscript. This young priest, moreover, was an able musician, and was seen to compose several pieces of music while in a state of somnambulism, drawing the lines of the music paper for the purpose with a ruler and pen and ink, and filling the spaces with his notes with the utmost precision, besides a careful adaptation of the words in vocal pieces."—The Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

Water Surface of Globe.

The portion of the earth's surface that is covered by water, when the lakes and inland seas are included, is three times as great as the dry land area. The surface area of the oceans is 127,000,000 square miles—an area more than 40 times as large as the United States. The ocean waters teem with life. Though thousands of water creatures are known and classified, scientists are continually discovering new life forms. In the ocean depths, Heretofore, magnets have been mainly depended upon, but there are doubtless many sea animals that elude these travels.

DYNAMITE MANIAC

Los Angeles German Tells Something of His Intention.

Los Angeles, Nov. 20.—Strapped to a cot in the receiving hospital Carl Warr, the German pattern maker, who took possession of the Central police station yesterday by threatening to destroy the building with an internal machine unless Paul Shoup, Jr., of the Pacific Electric Company was brought to him, told a wired tale today. Under renewed sweating he said that his real name was Carl Reidelbach, and that he was born at Nuremberg, Germany.

"I did not want to hurt anyone about the police station, declared Reidelbach. All I was after was the head of the Pacific Electric Company. I did not even know his name was Paul Shoup until after I was arrested. I did not even want to hurt him. I was merely going to show him my machine and tell him that I was going to blow him up unless he raised the wages of his workmen and otherwise improved their condition."

"I believe the best way to get him to promise to do what I wanted was to go to the police station and get the officers to cooperate with me in order to save their own lives. They were fools to try to capture me. If they had been killed it would have been no fault of mine. You can't call that murder."

"The machine is my own invention. I never heard of one like it. I don't want a description of the thing to get into the newspapers for fear others will steal my idea. One of the finest features of the machine is that instead of pulling the trigger to set the machine off, one has to hold the three triggers to keep it from going off."

Reidelbach ended his story by begging to be shot. He collapsed and became unconscious this afternoon. According to police surgeons he is in danger of death. He was removed from the emergency hospital to an upstairs cell in the city jail, equipped with a cot.

Reidelbach did not sustain a fractured skull and will recover, according to the police surgeons tonight.

DELIGHTED LARGE AUDIENCE.

Mrs. Christabel Kidder's reading of "The Piper," by Josephine Preston Peabody, in Association hall yesterday afternoon drew out a large audience, who listened with delight to her splendid interpretation. She portrayed with tragic force the scene where the mother of little Jan appeals to the Piper for the restoration of her child. The children themselves were delightfully characterized. Every intonation, every gesture, was in keeping with the character portrayed. Mrs. Kidder has rare natural talent, great dramatic ability and a charming personality.

MAYOR BADGER ASKED TO FURNISH EVIDENCE

Chief Estwistle Says He Will Guarantee Swift Prosecution to All Offenders

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 21, 1912.

Hon. D. W. Badger, Portsmouth, N. H.

"Dear Sir—In a letter addressed to the Police Commissioners and to me as City Marshal last Saturday, you stated that you understood that gambling houses existed in the city, that there is considerable illegal sale of liquor, and that houses of ill fame are numerous, and you said that you wanted the city cleaned up. Now I take it for granted that before you wrote that letter you must have had some positive and well defined evidence upon which your statements were based. I consider that you, as Mayor of the city, would not bring these matters to public attention unless you knew what you were talking about, and it seems reasonable to suppose that you would not thus attempt publicly to brand the city of Portsmouth as a haunt of vice and corruption if you were not in possession of facts which would justify your action.

"I therefore, as chief of police of Portsmouth, as the chief officer charged with the enforcement of the law, call upon you either as mayor or citizen, at once to furnish me with the evidence you have in your possession, with the names of witnesses, and with the names of all persons and places now violating the law in the respect to which you refer in your letter. I call upon you to produce these facts, and I will guarantee a swift and thorough prosecution of all offenders against whom you can give me the necessary evidence.

"I do not claim infallibility, but I do desire to perform my duty as chief of police to the best of my ability and for the best interest of the city and its people, and I say that it is your duty to come to the authorities and present to them the evidence of violations of law, which you have in your possession, rather than to write a letter with vague and indefinite statements concerning the prevalence of vice in this city, and at that a letter written just after you have announced yourself as a candidate for a third term as mayor, with the election only a little more than two weeks away.

"As chief of police, I want to ask you when you found out about the corrupt condition of the city. You have been mayor nearly two years, the chief executive of the city, and it might naturally be supposed that if vice was as prevalent here as you say it is, you would have found it out before last Saturday, when your second term as mayor was nearly at an end and you were just commencing your campaign for a third term. So I say, if there is anything at all to your statements about vice here, you must have had your information before last Saturday, and I ask you why you have waited so long in presenting the matter to the police department. In my experience of more than a quarter of a century as city marshal, I have found that in every case where a good citizen had information that the law was being violated he presented it at once, and did not wait until he was a candidate for office.

"I want to tell you that as chief of police of the city of Portsmouth, I have seen its morals constantly improve, and vice grow less prevalent, until a person who lived in the Portsmouth of twenty years ago would not recognize the city today. I have enforced the law against every offender and you know it. I firmly believe the city to be clean. I am satisfied that the law is being enforced, and that it is being obeyed, but as I have already said, I am the chief of police and therefore welcome any actual evidence of law breaking in order that the enforcement of the law may be thorough and vigilant.

"But when a man, be he mayor or citizen, writes such a letter as you have to the police department, in which by rumor and hearsay he undertakes to charge the city where he lives with being a hotbed of vice, and the police department of that city with failure to perform its duty, and the letter is written by that man after he has been two terms the head of the city and is seeking a third term, and when that same man announced in a public meeting October 28, 1912, in Freeman's hall, that there were crooks and grafters in City Hall, and yet has supplied set by and has done nothing to these men, if there are any, you can well understand that I or any other sane man would have but little confidence or place little faith in such a letter.

"And so, once more I demand of you the evidence to support the charges you make, as chief of police of the city of Portsmouth. I have a right to have it, the people of Portsmouth have a right to it, and if you are honest in your statements you will produce it. If on the other hand your letter is more of your political humbug gotten up at the suggestion of your political advisers in aid of your canvass for a third term as mayor, then like an honest man say so, and stop defaming the good name of the city, which has twice honored you by making you its chief executive.

"Since your letter and a consideration of the matter therein contained, bring up the general question of the strict enforcement of the law in Portsmouth, I desire to inform you, since owing to your comparatively short residence here, you may be uninformed, that in view of the fact that Portsmouth is a town with millions of capital invested in breweries, is a seaport town, and a naval station, a liberal enforcement of the law, has in accordance with the views of our best and leading citizens, long prevailed here, because they have considered such a policy most conducive to the general business prosperity of the city.

"For example, drug stores have been allowed to sell candy, cigars, soda, ice cream and other articles on Sundays, news stands have been permitted to sell the Sunday papers, stables and garages to minister to the needs of the public on the Sabbath, bootblack stands have been allowed to be open. All in violation of the Sunday law, and all of them crimes punishable by a penalty equal to that imposed for keeping houses of ill fame, because of the general desire the blue laws should not be strictly enforced here, and in order that our business men might not be made to suffer or the public undergo inconvenience because of the carrying out of such ideas on the enforcement of the law as you seem to possess.

"Do you want every law strictly enforced to the letter in this city regardless of its effect on business? Do you want the drug stores, the stables, the garages, the news stands and other lines of business to be closed on Sunday? In other words do you want to close up Portsmouth for good and all, without regard to the situation of the city, without consideration of the fact that it is a seaport town, without reckoning with all the various conditions and circumstances which are connected with the business life of the community, and without caring what the effect may be upon business and property? If you do, then say so, take the responsibility of such an order. Come out in the open and say what you mean, and then the people of Portsmouth will know what you are planning, and I will know whether you want me to continue in the policy of enforcing the law for the best interests of Portsmouth in accordance with the desires of its best citizens, or to close everything up, no matter whether the business men of Portsmouth suffer or not. I have been open and frank with you and I want you to be the same way with me.

"I am going to give copies of this letter to the local newspapers, because I have nothing to conceal. I am not afraid to present the situation. I am not running for office for a third term, and I have sufficient respect for and confidence in the good sense of the people of Portsmouth to want them to know all about this matter.

"Respectfully yours,
"THOMAS ENTWISTLE,
"City Marshal."

A three reel feature produced in Ireland by the Kalem Company. Five more than thirty years Mr. Joseph Murphy, the noted actor, presented this famous play from his own pen. Kalem has purchased the photoplay rights from Mr. Murphy and has produced every scene of the romantic drama in the authentic locations in Ireland. You will see the Lakes of Killarney, the Gap of Dunloe, the picturesque highways of Old Ireland and many typical humorous types. HEN THIEVES BUSY.

Clean Up Coop of Hens and Ducks on Water Street.

Bernard Johnson, a Water street poultry man has reported to the police that somebody cleaned up his coop on Wednesday night, taking all but a rooster. Johnson had several birds for the Thanksgiving market, including four large ducks which he valued at $2.00 each. The thief crawled through an opening used by his flock to go in and out of the coop, and after bagging the birds departed by the door. Johnson has some spare change which he says awaits any information as to who did the job.
